The Charles B. Copher Annual Faculty Lecture Series

The Charles B. Copher Annual Faculty Lecture Series, originally named The Annual Faculty Lecture Series, was initiated at the Office of The Journal of the Interdenominational Theological Center (JITC) in March 1979. It formed part of the Twentieth Anniversary Celebration of the founding of the ITC. This lecture series is now named in honor of Dr. Copher, who, for many years, served ITC in the dual capacity of Professor of Old Testament and Languages and as Academic Dean. The series enables faculty to be on the cutting-edge of their respective disciplines. For many years, the presentation occurred during the ITC Charter Week activities and lectures and were published by the Journal of the Interdenominational Theological Center (JITC).

Dr. Copher completed his undergraduate work at Stowe Teacher’s College in St. Louis, Missouri, and Clark College in Atlanta, Georgia. He earned Bachelor of Divinity degrees from Gammon Theological Seminary in Atlanta, Georgia, and Oberlin Graduate School of Theology in Oberlin, Ohio. Dr. Copher received the Doctor of Philosophy degree from Boston University and later completed post-doctoral study at New York University and the University of Chicago Divinity School.

While pursuing graduate study, Dr. Copher pastored a number of churches in Ohio and Massachusetts. The main thrust of his career, however, was teaching. He served as Professor of Old Testament Studies during the 1950s. He was a visiting instructor at Clark College from 1943 through 1953. At the inception of the ITC, Dr. Copher joined the faculty, serving first as Professor of Old Testament Studies and Languages and later as Dean of Instruction. Later, he filled the post of Vice President for Academic Affairs. He retired in 1978 as Professor Emeritus of Old Testament.

Dr. Copher is widely published in religious journals and periodicals. The Christian Advocate, for example, has carried no less than sixty-three of his works. Other publications in which his writings appear, include: The Foundation, The Journal of Bible and Religion, Theological Education, and the JITC. In addition, he authored many student books, study guides, published sermons, and worship services. Two particularly popular works are: “The Black Presence in the Old Testament” in Stony the Road We Trod, edited by Cain Hope Felder, 1991, and Black Biblical Studies: An Anthology of Charles B. Copher, Black Light Fellowship, Chicago, Illinois, 1993.

Prior to his passing in August 2003, Dr. Copher was married to the former Marie White.

Dr. Reginaldo P. Braga Jr
The Rev. Dr. Lisa Allen-McLaurin is an Emmy-award winning pastor, professor, and public theologian. She is the Helmar Emil Nielsen Professor of Church Music and Worship and Degree Coordinator for the Master of Arts in Liturgical Arts and Culture (MALC) at the ITC (Atlanta, Georgia). Dr. Allen-McLaurin is an ordained elder in the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church and serves as the Coordinator for Practical Ministries in the Sixth Episcopal District. She graduated from Millsaps College and the University of Southern Mississippi with Bachelor’s, Master’s, and Ph.D. degrees in piano and music education. She also holds the Master of Divinity degree from the Candler School of Theology at Emory University.

Dr. Allen-McLaurin’s teaching interests include worship in African American contexts, spirituality and theology in worship, and gender issues in the Black Church. She is the author of the forthcoming monograph, A Womanist Theology of Worship: Liturgy, Justice, and Communal Righteousness (Orbis Books), and two other texts: Worship Matters! A Collection of Practical Essays on the Practical and Spiritual Discipline of Worship (Creative Publishing, 2015) and Development Comes Before Deliverance: A 9-Week Sermon Series and Bible Study for Pastors and Congregations (Creative Publishing, 2018). She has authored many articles, including “The Theo-Ethics of Negro Spirituals as Folklore and Their Import and Implications for 21st Century AfricansinAmerica,” published in the fall 2019 Journal of the ITC and is a featured contributor in the 2020 People’s Voice Webby award-winning documentary, A King’s Place: Reclaiming the Black Church’s Civil Rights Past. Dr. Allen-McLaurin is a noted composer and arranger and, in 2019 debuted her Advent Cantata, Christmas is Waiting to Be Born: An Advent Cantata Inspired by the Works of Howard Thurman at the ITC. She is also a featured musicologist in the 2015 Emmy-award winning documentary, Reflect, Reclaim, Rejoice: Preserving the Gift of Black Sacred Music.
In addition to her work at the ITC and in the CME Church, Dr. Allen-McLaurin serves on the Arts, Religion and Literature, and Music and Religion Program Unit Steering Committees of the American Academy of Religion; the editorial board of The Methodist Review Journal; and holds memberships in the Society for the Study of Black Religion, Hymns for Him Board of Directors, and the National African American Leadership Council.

Dr. Allen-McLaurin is CEO/curator of Sunday’s Coming, a weekly online worship planning webinar; CEO/Founder of Creating Collegiality, a collaborative leadership mentoring program; a member of the Sisters Chapel Advisory Council at Spelman College; a mentor with the RISE Together National Mentorship Network; and is a 2018 inductee into the Morehouse College Board of Preachers. Dr. Allen-McLaurin feels a great responsibility to help leaders, particularly women, shape and hone their academic and ministerial gifts. She is married to Thomas McLaurin and their blended family includes five children and two granddaughters.
Rev. Dr. Maisha I. K. Handy, Respondent

A native of Chicago Illinois, the Rev. Dr. Maisha I. K. Handy is an administrator, professor, minister, pastor, and activist. Dr. Handy is committed to the struggle for justice and liberation as a womanist scholar/practitioner. She began her journey through higher education at Lincoln University (Jefferson City, MO) receiving the Bachelor of Science degree in Criminology/Criminal Justice (1989). After relocating to Atlanta, Georgia, she received the Master of Divinity degree with honors from Candler School of Theology, Emory University (1994) and the Ph.D. degree in Religion (Theology & Personality) from Emory University (2002). Dr. Handy served as both the Vice President for Academic Affairs/Provost (2015-2021) and Associate Professor of Religion and Education at the Interdenominational Theological Center (ITC) in Atlanta, Georgia, where she has been employed for 21 years.

During her tenure as faculty at the ITC, Dr. Handy served as the Black Women in Church and Society Womanist Scholar (2006-2007). She is the author of “Fighting the Matrix: Toward a Womanist Pedagogy for the Black Church” in The Journal of the Interdenominational Theological Center and co-author of “Getting Real” in Keep It Real: Working with Today’s Black Youth. Dr. Handy founded the “Holla If You Hear Me!” hip hop forum, a series that engages the hip hop generation, the church, and the academy in community dialogue that stemmed from the Religion and Hip-Hop course she established at the ITC. She continues her work as a womanist scholar/practitioner committed to the unique HBCU experience of theological education.

Dr. Handy also currently serves as the founding pastor of Rize Community Church (Atlanta, GA), an africentric and radically inclusive ministry. Known as “Pastor K” or “Umi K,” she is a minister and theologian who is dedicated to pastoral mentoring and prophetic preaching. Dr. Handy was licensed (1991) and ordained (1994) to the gospel ministry at First Baptist Congregational Church of Chicago (Baptist/UCC) and ordained as a Minister of Word and Sacrament in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). After 7 1/2 years of serving as the pastor of Rize, the Leadership Team continues to work together to develop a growing and thriving church community that strives to bring healing and transformation to the world by the Holy Spirit alongside the church and the wider community.
Dr. Will Coleman, Respondent

Dr. Will Coleman is the Associate Professor of Systematic Theology and Religions of the World at the Interdenominational Theological Center (Atlanta, Georgia) and the author of Tribal Talk: Black Theology, Hermeneutics and African/American Ways of “Telling the Story” (Penn State Press, 2000). This publication was nominated for the Grawemeyer Award in Religion by Penn State Press (2001). This is a multidimensional study of the retentions of African Traditional Religions, especially Hoodoo and Vodun, among freed African Americans (late 1800s – 1920s), especially in South Carolina and Georgia. Also, it surveys the historical African Diasporic connection between Vodun, Ifa, and Nkisi of West Africa with Candomblé (Brazil), Santería (Puerto Rica), Lukumi (Cuba), Vodou (Haiti), and Hoodoo (Southern United States). It demonstrates how this ancestral spiritual legacy is indispensable for a contemporary, constructive Black Theology.

Dr. Coleman also offers online courses and virtual publications with an extensive and massive audio and audio-visual archive on a variety of spiritual and religious topics.

Dr. Coleman’s educational experience includes Bachelor of Arts., Rhodes College [Religion major] (Memphis, TN); Master of Divinity, Columbia Theological Seminary [Theology and History of Christian Thought concentration] (Decatur, GA); Ph.D. [“with distinction”], Graduate Theological Union [Philosophical Theology, Systematic Theology, Philosophy of Religion, Theological Hermeneutics] (Berkeley, CA).

His teaching experience includes institutions Columbia Theological Seminary (Decatur, GA) as Associate Professor of Theology and Hermeneutics (1993-2000). Dr. Coleman has taught the following courses at the ITC (2002-present) including: Introduction to Christian Theology; Reformed Theology; Presbyterian Polity; Paul Tillich; Theological Hermeneutics; Introduction to Christian Ethics; Introduction to Philosophy and Theology; Systematic Theology; History of the African American Churches; Introduction to the Philosophy and Practices of African Traditional Religions; African and Middle Eastern Religions.
Rev. Amber Lowe-Woodfork, M.Div., '15, Respondent

Rev. Amber Lowe-Woodfork, M.Div., '15 is from Columbia, MS. She earned the Bachelor of Arts in English Literature from the University of Mississippi (Oxford, MS) in 2012. After deciding to serve the community through ministry, Amber enrolled in Phillips School of Theology at the Interdenominational Theological Center (Atlanta, GA). She graduated in 2015 with Highest Honors and received the Master of Divinity degree with a concentration in Ethics. Amber is currently in pursuit of a Doctor of Philosophy in English Literature at Clark Atlanta University (Atlanta, GA). She will continue her studies in the fall at Indiana University (Bloomington, IN). Her research focuses on the intersection of Afrofuturism, myth, and religion in the writings of Octavia Butler.

Rev. Lowe-Woodfork is an ordained Elder in the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church. She has served as Senior Pastor at St. James CME Church (Perry, GA); Mount Zion CME Church (Rome, GA); and, Good News Community CME Church (Lithonia, GA), and is currently the Assistant Pastor at the Historic West Mitchell Street CME Church (Atlanta, GA). Rev. Lowe-Woodfork is the former Assistant Faith Organizer at the New Georgia Project and is currently the Director of Faith Outreach for Sarah Riggs Amico for U.S. Senate. She has also served as the Faith Consultant for the ACLU of Georgia as well as Director of Faith Outreach for several political candidates including former City Council President Ceasar C. Mitchell, Jr, Peter Aman, State Rep. Keisha Waites, Travis Townsend, and Helen Zenobia Willis. Rev. Lowe-Woodfork has also worked in campaign finance as the Deputy Finance Director for Fani Willis for Fulton County Superior Court Judge, State Rep. Erica Thomas, and Magistrate Judge Cassandra Kirk.

Rev. Lowe-Woodfork’s pastoral and public ministry are rooted in liberation theology and social justice. Her sermons, bible studies, and lectures always focus on public policy issues while highlighting the idea that social justice is at the hem of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. When she is not busy, Rev. Lowe-Woodfork contributes essays on her WordPress blog, Bellus Mantis. She enjoys time spent with her eight nieces and nephews, playing football and basketball with her husband and brothers, cooking, reading, yoga, running and biking, and visiting art and history museums.
